Islamic State monster was training an army of children

TEACHER OF TERROR JAILED

AN unqualified teacher who trained a "mini militia" of children for terrorist attacks in London has been jailed for life with a minimum term of 25 years.

Islamic State (IS) fanatic Umar Haque, 25, planned to use guns and a car bomb to strike 30 high-profile targets including Big Ben, the Queen's Guard and Westfield shopping centre.

He enlisted helpers at the Ripple Road mosque in Barking, where he secretly brainwashed 16 children as young as 11 through terrorism role play and exercises.

The defendant had also admitted playing an IS film to pupils at the Lantern of Knowledge fee-paying school in Leyton where he had worked, the Old Bailey heard.

Sentencing, Mr Justice Haddon-Cave said Haque wanted to do "something big" and his ambition was "extreme and alarming".

The worst aspect was the deliberate and sustained grooming of children to join a "mini militia" unbeknown to their parents who had paid for afterschool classes at the mosque.

He is a "very real" threat to the young and old alike, the judge said.

"Haque was a dangerous liar. He is intelligent, articulate and persuasive with an easy smile. He is narcissistic and clearly enjoys the power he wields over others."

The judge told Haque: "You have violated the Koran and Islam by your actions as well as the law of all civilised people. It is hoped you will come to realise this."

Haque ranted about "domination", "hunger

and insecurity" as he was sent down.

Fundraiser Abuthaheer Mamun, 19, who was said to have "renounced" Haque's extremist view of Islam, was jailed for 12 years with a further year on extended licence.

Haque's confidant Muhammad Abid, 27, a qualified cupping therapist, was handed four years and three months in prison for failing to report the plot.

Youngsters traumatised by extremist material

CHILDREN have been left "traumatised" after being groomed by Islamic State-inspired terrorist Umar Haque.

A specialist social worker assessed nine youngsters aged between 11 and 13 who have suffered "flashbacks" and "nightmares" from the self-styled teacher's lessons at the Ripple Road mosque in Barking.

The Old Bailey heard he showed them grisly IS videos and forced them to train for terror attacks across London.

Prosecutor Mark Heywood QC read extracts of the social worker's report, saying: "As a result of their contact with the defendant, Haque, the children had spoken primarily of their confusion and frustration surrounding Islamic State, their religion and non-Muslims."

"Although they are clear what they saw was wrong, they are left conflicted and without answers which leads them to be particularly vulnerable to grooming."

"Some speak of having flashbacks nightmares centred around fear of death and punishment in the afterlife, perhaps in reference to (the video) of the young boy seen buried and in a grave."

The boys' sense of self-identity has been deeply affected and led to "internal conflict" creating an "us and them, East and West ideology".

The court heard that the boys, who cannot be identified, will need ongoing support.

Haque bragged of having 16 students in his Ripple Road class.

Mr Heywood said it was "common ground" with the defence that Haque also played an IS video to pupils at the Lantern of Knowledge fee-paying school in Leyton, around late 2015.

Haque said in his evidence that he played it at students' request.

Jurors were unable to agree a verdict on a charge of disseminating terrorist material at the Lantern of Knowledge, which was ordered to remain on file.

Police renew witness appeal over fatal stabbing of teenager

DETECTIVES investigating the fatal stabbing of a teenager in Chadwell Heath have launched a fresh appeal for witnesses and information one week on from the incident.

Police were called at approximately 10.30pm on Wednesday, March 14 to reports of an assault on Padnall Road.

Lyndon Davis, 18, was found suffering from a stab injury nearby in Nash Road.

He was taken to an east London hospital where he died at 1.16am.

A post-mortem examination on Friday, March 16 gave the cause of death as stab injuries.

Detective Chief Inspector Tony Lynes, of the Homicide and Major Crime Command, said: "We are appealing for any witnesses who may have been in the area of Nash Road and Padnall Road at about 10.30pm who may have witnessed the victim being chased by a group of at least seven people."

"I would also ask people who may have seen anyone acting suspiciously in the area at around that time."

"If you have any information that could assist this investigation then please contact police - a young man has been tragically killed and we need to get justice for his family."

A 34-year-old man, arrested during the early stages of the investigation, has been bailed pending further enquiries to a date in mid-April.

Anyone with information is asked to call the incident room on 020 8721 4868 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111. You can also tweet police via @MetCC.

Council of the year accolade is 'testament to our vision'

BARKING and Dagenham Council has been named the top council in the country at this year's Local Government Chronicle Awards.

The authority took home the coveted title of Council of the Year at the 22nd awards ceremony, at Grosvenor House, London on March 21, which was hosted by Channel 4 News broadcaster Jon Snow.

The council was also named as the winner of the Driving Growth award.

Judges said the council successfully demonstrated "combining significant public service improvement and reform with budget cuts and efficiency savings."

Entries were judged on several factors including leadership, community engagement, and addressing challenges such as housing and an ageing population.

Councillor Darren Rodwell, leader of the council, said:

"This is a wonderful accolade not just for me but for more than 2,900 staff - from street cleaners and school cooks, through to councillors, officers and our partner organisations."

"These people, many of who live in the borough, have really made a positive difference to the lives of around 210,000 residents in Barking and Dagenham."

"To see their work recognised in this way, and to beat the competition we did, is a real honour and testament to our vision."

"While I will be the first to hold my hands up and admit we might not always get things right, this award shows we are a council that is going in the right direction and we will continue to do our best to improve the lives of our residents."

The Driving Growth Award recognises the council's ambitions for the future and the role of helping local businesses to prosper. As well as winning the two awards, the council was highly commended by judges in the Housing Initiative category for the borough's Reside scheme, which offers affordable rental accommodation to people earning the minimum wage.

London Assembly Member Unmesh Desai said: "I am very pleased that all the work Barking and Dagenham have been doing to support their residents under significant pressure from Government cuts has been recognised and I agree that they are a very deserving council of the year."

"This is just further evidence that London is moving east. From developments like Barking Riverside to the plans for a film studio in Dagenham, the borough has been growing and developing."

"This has been recognised in Barking also winning the Driving Growth Award."

Mounted police gear up for marathon

EIGHT police officers are gearing up to run the London Marathon on Sunday, April 22 for Great Ormond Street Hospital and Sparks children's medical research.

The officers, from the Metropolitan Police Mounted

Branch, will hold a fundraising day at Eastminster School of Riding, Romford, on Sunday, April 8. The community fun day will include a raffle, pony rides, music, cakes, and crafts-manship.

The team's police horses will be demonstrating their training throughout the day.

One horse, who received a PDSA award for bravery during the 2011 Tottenham disturbances, will be available for a pat and meet.

Inspector Natalie Shaw has two boys with Worster-Drought syndrome, a rare form of cerebral palsy.

She said: "I'm proud of these officers for running with me. Great Ormond Street Hospital has supported my family and offered outstanding care for both my sons Oli and Harry. Raising our target is our way of saying thank you."

PC Nici Foley said: "Eastminster School of Riding have been so supportive. We have worked with them in the past and found this to be a huge success bringing the local community together."
